

The Story Pirates Nothing Is Impossible Artist Statements

Peer, 11 years old, California

Track 3: The Guy

"I make a LOT of cartoons about The Guy and his friends. For this story I kind of just sat down on the floor, thought up some crazy dialogue and a crazy name (Mr. Surler) and wrote it down."

Ethan, 4 years old, New Jersey

Track 4: Riding a Seagull Was Good

"I am a boy named Ethan and I have heterotaxy so I have a special heart and a battery. I love to run and catch a seagull but I can't even jump that high so I wrote a story about it. That's because if you can't do something you just imagine [sic] it and then you can write something about it."

Lily, 9 years old, Arizona

Track 6: Nothing Is Impossible

"I got the idea for the story 'Nothing's Impossible' by thinking about silly things and what came to my mind was a horse playing a guitar. I thought it would be a cool story and that it was impossible but I wanted it to be a happy story so the name is 'Nothing's Impossible.' I remember how surprised and happy I was when Story Pirates chose my story. It was a great feeling!!!"

Leah, 6 years old, Maryland

Track 7: In the Car

"I wrote this story because I like looking out the window when I'm driving to school. There are so many fun things to see on the way!"

Eric, 9 years old, Virginia

Track 8: How Penguin Office Became a Thing

"Penguin Office started with a series of drawings. I drew a penguin, then I drew a suit on him (since those were the only clothes I knew how to draw), and then I thought, 'Why not draw an office around him?'. After drawing a bunch of those, I thought it would be fun to write a story on how the office came to be a thing."

Lillie, 6th grader, Arkansas

Track 10: Pizza Revenge

"Lillie is a 6th grade homeschooler from Nebraska. She was riding in a car, very hungry for pizza, when she heard the Story Pirates podcast request new stories about using technology in surprising ways. She decided to combine the two and Pizza Revenge was born! She hopes to write a sequel in which the hot dogs stage a comeback."

Alex, 10 years old, New York

Track 11: Fred the Carrot

"I wanted to think of something funny to write about. Then I thought 'what about a talking carrot' - that should be really funny!"

Liam, 8 years old, Maryland

Track 12: What the World Was Called Before Us

"When I am bored sometimes I like to read or write stories. I also like to wonder about big questions when I'm bored. That's how I came up with my story about the name of the world."
